THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF AGRICULTURE (SHRI KANTILAL BHURIA): (a) to (c) The Mid Term Appraisal of the Tenth Five Year Plan (2002-07) has emphasized on public private partnership (PPP) in the development of agriculture. The areas in which the private sector could play an important role include horticulture development, development of agricultural marketing infrastructure, development of storage facilities, seed production and distribution, and provision of extension services.

The issue of PPP has been deliberated at various fora in the recent past and several areas in this regard have been focused, such as redefining Government intervention to make Indian agriculture demand driven, propagation of the success stories of the private section in their initiatives to raise incomes of farmers and partnering with farmers, achieving higher levels of public investment in agriculture infrastructure, food safety, cold chain, research and development, and agriculture extension services.
